PROFIL

3rd year student of Informatics Engineering study program at Pamulang University who has a deep interest in the IT world, especially in the field of database and website design. I have foreign language soft skills, it is English language and other skills in using Microsoft Office, such as Microsoft Word, Excel, and PowerPoint, to manage data effectively and present information with attractive visualizations.

Fluency in English enriches my abilities, allowing me to navigate the global technology landscape fluently. Beyond the syntax and semantics of programming languages, I communicate complex ideas effectively, bridging the gap between complicated algorithms and user-friendly explanations. As a third-year student, I have not only mastered the core principles of Informatics Engineering but also honed my communication skills to become the link between the digital world and human users.
